Talents and gifts in the family: Respect for Self and Others. Everyone can do some things well. We call them gifts. Think of things you do well and draw a picture to show how you can use your gifts to make others happy.

Make a family talent/Gifts chain. Cut strips of colored construction paper, the same number for each member of the family. Choose a different color for each family member.

Discuss things each member of the family does well. Include ways they contribute to life of the family, such as a good sense of humor to taking out the garbage willingly. Write one of these talents or contributions on each strip of construction paper. Be sincere about the compliments represented.

Form one of the strips of paper into a circle and staple or tape the ends together. Form a circle with a strip from another member of the family and “thread” it through the first circle, forming a new “link”. Tape or staple it together. Continue until all the strips you have written on are included.

When we concentrate on the wonderful gifts our children bring to the family, rather than on “problems,” we are apt to be better parents. Helping our children view themselves in positive ways boosts their self-esteem. Children (and adults) who value themselves value other people. They have much more potential to be peacemakers in our troubled world.

At eight weeks, the baby is capable of feeling pain; all body systems are present; sucks thumbs, wakes and sleeps. This is the time when most abortions are performed. "The greatest gift of God, I would think, is the gift of life. The greatest sin of humans, it would seem, would be to return the gift ungratefully and unopened." -John Powell, S.J

Gospel: John 21:1-19

When Peter announced, "I am going fishing" he was doing something that he had done everyday since childhood. Little did he know that he would meet the risen Christ in such an ordinary activity. Today's gospel teaches us to expect to encounter the Lord in the ordinary routines of our family life.

LIVE MASS aired Every Sunday from Saint John Gualbert Cathedral in Johnstown on WATM-TV ABC Channel 23 If you are homebound and not able to attend the Sunday Mass, please watch our Diocesan Program Proclaim at 10:30 a.m. and the live telecast of Sunday Liturgy at 11:00 a.m.

Life is a Miracle

Spiritual leaders teach that waking up is a process, that it doesn't just happen once and for all, but must occur again and again when we realize we have forgotten the miracle of being alive, and in recognizing our forgetfulness, we wake to the miracles once again. In the moments we awake to the wonder of being alive, gratitude flows, no matter our circumstances.
